eDOC Expands Collaboration Resources

MIDWAY, UT and MIDDLEBURY, VT – May 21th, 2010

eDOC Innovations has released an expanded LISTSERV for their users. Propelled by a request presented by eDOC users during their User Group Meeting on May 5th, 2010, this list enables eDOC users to have instant contact with their peers. Email permits users to pose questions, offer suggestions and feedback and give valuable insight to their peers efficiently and rapidly- even from smart phones.

Among eDOC's active users is Cutter Phillips, VP of Marketing/IT at River Valley Credit Union in Ada, Michigan. "Collaboration equals value and growth. The more we share with our peers, the more value we create for vendors and our own business. It also creates professional growth as individuals and provides a wealth of information for future users to grow their businesses. The cuasterisk.com network and eDOC use collaboration to improve processes, create improvements based on efficiency, and to present a single CU with the resources of over 100 credit unions," commented Phillips.

eDOC expressed its vision of providing innovative and collaborative opportunities to credit union peers. According to the CUSO, creating a LISTSERV is one of many ways they have integrated requests from peers into their solutions and services. "eDOC is about credit unions – credit unions are our owners, peers and innovative participants in the development of our e-Document solutions. The more our peers collaborate with eDOC and each other the more value we can, as a network, present to the financial industry as a whole," commented Bret Weekes, President and CEO of eDOC Innovations.
